IDEAL WEATHER FOR DOMINION DAY

Fitting Celebration Throughout Canada—Redcliff Children Entertained by Sunday Schools—Many Take in Sports at Medicine Hat.

From reports coming from all parts the Dominion jittingly observed her forty-seventh birthday last Wednesday. The weather was ideal for the occasion, and from coast to coast all joined heartily in all kinds of out-door sport.

In Redcliff those who did not take in the celebration and athletic meet at Medicine Hat spent the day picnicing along the river bank. Besides the two Sunday school picnics there were several private picnic parties and all report a most enjoyable day. All kinds of games for both young and old were provided and the large crowd of parents and children had a regular old time picnic day of pleasure. Our town was also well represented at Medicine Hat, and a number of local firms added greatly to the success of one of the best parades we have seen in the West. Among those noticed in the procession was the fine display of busses and trucks from the Redcliff Motors Works and a most attractively arranged display from the Redcliff Brick and Coal Company's plant. The Redcliff display was led by Mayor Bott's car, artistically rigged up as a sailing ship and labelled "H. M. S. Redcliff." As it was impossible to provide water to make the ship look more natural His Worship did the next best think and had two "swells," Messrs. H. Pingle and J. Merry, occupy prominent places in the forecastle.

The amateur provincial meet was also a great success and several records were broken. Among them were the half-mile, 220-yards, running broad jump, hop-step-and-jump, high Jump and 120-yard hurdle race.

Redcliff also made a good showing in the sporting events. In trap shooting Mr. Vanness got first prize for the grand challenge, and Mr. Hurd got second. In the five-a-side football the Redcliff Callies got second prize. They won their first game with the Medicine Hat Callies, but lost out in the final game with another [illegible] and the same club. In tennis [illegible] also got second prize, losing to the Hat.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Dominion buffalo herd at Wainright is increasing so rapidly that the government now has no less than 1,500 animals. When the herd was secured several years ago there were only half this number; 152 were added by natural increase during the past year.

Lethbridge is to have a look at the Dominion wool exhibit this year at the big Southern Alberta Fair to be held in that city from July 6 to 10.

A sad fatality occurred on Saturday morning on the farm of Carl Dell, about three and one-half miles northeast of Irvine when John Dell, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dell, was killed by being kicked and dragged to death by a horse he was leading.

"The King, accompanied by the Queen, may tour their colonial possessions in the autumn of 1915. If the plan is carried out their majesties will start the autumn of next year and go by way of the east and hogue through the Pacific to Vancouver, thense through Canada."

Nearly half of the old Witch City of Salem, Mass., rich in historic buildings, was devastated last Saturday by a fire that caused a loss of $20,000,000, destroyed 1,000 buildings, including a score of manufacturing establishments, and made 10,000 of the 45,000 residents homeless.

HILLCREST DISASTER DEMORALISES COMPANY.

Mr. Mackie, one of the directors of the Hillcrest Collieries, said that the company would probably be unable to weather the disaster to its property. If the company does go into liquidation, the bondholders get the first claim on the resources, and the statement was made that there is mighty little chance of any compensation being paid, as the indemnity comes second to the bondholders.

W. T. Lockwood says "If you want any news for this week's Review, just tell the people I said it is very warm."

TO PIPE OIL FROM WELLS TO RAILROAD

Capitalized at $500,000, a company has been incorporated under the name of the Alberta Pipe Line and Refining Company, which has acquired a large strip of land near the railroad at Okotoks, and completed a deal with several wells to be ready to pipe the oil to the railroad immediately that it flows in commercial quantities.

The company has been organized by a number of Vancouver and Spokane capitalists. It is the intention of the company to forestall the Standard Oil Company and be ready the moment oil is struck in large quantities to pipe the oil to the railroad. The company also contemplates erecting a refining plant on its property near Okotoks the moment that the oil is assured. For the present the company has the intention of merely installing tanks near the railroad for oil storage purposes, and it is understood also that the company will ask the railroad to construct a siding on the property as soon as possible.

Oil Broker Gets Six Months in Prison

An oil broker in Calgary has been sentenced to serve six months in prison because he made certain fraudulent representations to a purchaser of oil stocks. His particular offence seems to have been that he told another man that the McDougall-Seagur Company had struck oil and on the strength of this representation the party of the second part paid him an exorbitant price for some stock in a company which has holdings near by. The individual who was fleeced did not make complaint to the authorities, but the incident having come to the notice of an agent of the Attorney-General's Department, the latter instituted proceedings with the effect above stated. As a result it is likely that vendors of oil stock will repress a certain phase of high-finance in future. This should be a warning to all agents of oil companies.

MEDICINE HAT SHOOTING TURNAMENT

Redcliff Cracks Made a Remarkably Good Showing on Dominion Day.

Redcliff trap shooters came pretty near winning all the fingers at the second annual trap shooting tournament of the Medicine Hat Gun Club on Dominion Day. In the second event E. F. Hurd won the second prize, a box of cigars, and Van Nest won the third prize, a clock. In the third event Van Nest divided second money with Tyndall, of the Hat.

In the team shoot between Redcliff and Hat teams the local team, composed of E. F. Hurd, Kennedy, Pratt, Van Nest and Rice, the local team scored 82 to their opponents 97, Mr. Kennedy, who has only made two appearances at the trap, got two out of twenty-five.

Redcliff was only represented by Van Nest in the fifth, or manufacturers event at 25 birds. He surprised the Hatters with a score of 23 straight and took the first prize, a fine hunting coat. Van Nest also won the high average for the day.

A. E. Grimmer won the Redcliff-Medicine Hat trophy after a close race with Roxbrough, Van Nest and Hurd.

E. F. Hurd, of Redcliff, shot remarkably well in all the events, and was well up to the front in the totals.

MINE AT HOSMER IS CLOSED DOWN.

Twelve hundred miners have been thrown out of work and the town of Hosmer, not far from Fernie, B. C., is about to be abandoned by its population, owing to the fact that the coal mines at this point, owned and operated by the C. P. R. have been shutd own and closed forever. The work of dismantling the machinery is well under way.

Merchants and property owners in the town are almost paralyzed with fear because their land is worthless once the mines have been closed for good, coal mining being the only industry that supported the town.

REDCLIFF FOOTBALLERS WIN FROM NOMADS

Two Local Teams Still in Running for Both League and Charity Cups —Play Here Saturday Week.

Another game in the football league was played here last Saturday evening between the Nomade of the Hat and the Redcliffs, the home team winning out by 3 goals to 0. There was a fair turnout at the game and as the weather was ideal an excellent article was put up. The locals played an excellent game and had the visitors going all the way. Although Redcliff was considerably handicapped by the removal of Partington from the game in its early stage they were at no stage in danger of losing the game, Partington was hurt shortly after play started and was forced to retire, leaving the locals with only ten men to the visitors' eleven.

Rev. J. O. Waits, of Medicine Hat, refereed the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams.

Both local teams are now playing good football and still have a chance of landing the cup.

The local Callies and Redcliffs are still in the semi finals for the charity cup and there is little doubt that either one of them or possibly both will be in the finals. In this competition the Redcliffs play the winners of the Hat Callies and Moose game and the Redcliff Callies and Nomads play off to see which will be in the final game. At present the betting is that the final game will be between the two Callies.

The Redcliff Callies and Nomads play their game here a week from Saturday.

Ohio Visitors Are Pleased with Redliff

Messrs. Laurence Kreider, of Canaan; B. T. Sharp, of Greenville, and N. W. Binkley, of Pittsburg, all of Ohio, were visitors in town last Tuesday for a few hours while awaiting connections for the West. While here they were the guests of Mr. Ardinger, who showed them around through the industries. After making the rounds Mr. Sharp told a representative of The Review he had heard a great deal about Redcliff, but what he had just seen surpassed his most sanguine expectation. He was greatly impressed with the substantial class of industries of which the town can now boast and thought the town had done remarkably well in keeping up its development during the hard times of the past year. He felt sure that a brilliant future was in store for Redcliff. All the visitors were sorry they could not stand a longer time in town.

GIRLS PLAY BASEBALL.

The All-American Girls Baseball Club, a touring baseball team composed of all girls, will cross bats with the local boys of Redcliff on Monday, July 6, at 6.15 p. m. This club is now on their way to the coast from Chicago, where they play all winter, and are to be featured at the Panama Exposition in 1915. The feature attraction, however, is Miss Maud Wilson, the champion lady pitcher of the world. She is not the only star, as each and every girl plays her positions like professionals. This will be a treat to the fans and fanniettes of Redcliff. The game is called at 6.15 p. m. and the admission is 50 cents to all.

NEW CUSTOM OFFICE FOR OIL DISTRICT.

In order that all the machinery, coal and other goods used by the drilling concerns along the border on the Canadian side may be passed the necessity of hauling all their overland loads to the entry port of Coutts, the Dominion government has placed an officer of the customs at the Segur well in Section 1, 1-19, west of the fourth.

MILITANT SUFFREGETTES BOMBARD KING AND QUEEN.

Militant suffragettes circumvented the police last Saturday and bombarded King George and Queen Mary with leaflets at the entrance of Hyde Park. A bundle of the papers struck the king's hat and knocked it side ways while the queen's parasol caught another shower of pamphlets.

WORK STARTED ON NEW ENGLISH CHURCH

Rev. Gibson Turns First Sod—Church To Be Solid Brick And Will Cost $6000.00—Mr. Rolfe Gets Contract

Construction work on the new St. Ambrose Church was commenced this morning, the vicar, Rev. H. C. Gibson, turning the first sod.

The church will be 64 feet long and 31 feet wide, and will be built on the corner of Fifth avenue and Fifth street, where the parish hall now stands. These lots were donated to the church last year by the Redcliff Realty Company. The building will cost in the neighborhood of $6,000.00. This amount was collected by the vicar on his recent visit to England. It will be of solid brick and the material will be bought from the Redcliff Clay Products Company.

Mr. William Rolfe has the contract and it is expected that the building will be completed inside of three months, so that the new edifice will be ready to occupy before the cold weather begins.

We understand additional subscriptions are needed for the furnishings. These will be thankfully received by the treasurer, Mr. J. Harbert.

REDCLIFF MAKES GOOD SHOWING IN PARADE

The Redcliff Brick and Coal Company captured second prize in the manufacturer's class for their float in the procession at Medicine Hat on Dominion Day. As there were a large number of competitors the local company deserve credit for their splendid showing. Their exhibit was made up on a dray showing ten kinds of their brick set in mortar, a huge piece of coal and two fully rigged miners sitting on it, and an oil derrick showing the varied activities of the industry. The town had a small rig showing a gas well blowing off, "The Only Hot Air in Redcliff."

Our band is also being complimented on all sides for the excellent showing it made both in the parade and on the corner after the parade.

In speaking of the motor truck exhibit the News says: "Their display of trucks and busses was a revelation to the public." The cadet corps also marched in the parade and our citizens were proud of them.

Of the lodges for the motors had been ladies there is no doubt but that the two unklassed beauties who piloted Mayor Bott's ship in the parade would have secured a prize.

Alfresco Concert and Lawn Social.

An alfresco concert and lawn social will be given on the grounds of the English Church on the evening of Wednesday, July 8. The grounds will be decorated and there will be illuminations after dark. The Redcliff band has kindly promised to be in attendance and will give selections. Glee singers will also add to the list of [illegible] treats, and there will be a [illegible] program of vocal and instrumental [illegible]. Other attractions to be announced in connection with the evening will include dainty [illegible] of ice cream and soft drinks. Dancing in the Hall will be another attraction and orchestral music of a high order will be on hand. Come and [illegible] funds and enjoy the band the moonlight, and take in one of [illegible] events of the season.

Premier Whitney Again Carries Ontario

Will Have Slightly Reduced Majority —Liberals Gain Thirteen Seats and Conservatives Nine—Personality of Premier Plays Important Part.

After one of the bitterest contests in the history of Ontario, Sir James Whitney and the Conservative party were returned to power as a result of the election last Monday.

By insistence on the fact that the prohibition of the liquor traffic in Ontario was the supreme issue in the campaign, the parties were actually arraigned as for or against the prohibition of the retail trade in liquor in the province (only federal legislation can prohibit the manufacture of liquor).

As a result of the voting, which was very heavy, more especially in the rural constituencies, the Liberal opposition gained thirteen seats in the new legislature, the Conservatives gained nine seats, and the Independents two. The new house will be composed thus of 83 Conservatives, 26 Liberals and two Independents.

Sir James Whitney, the former premier of the province, and the leader of the government party, had his majority in Dundas reduced by nearly 500. Hon. Dr. Rheaume, former minister of public works, was the only member of the former cabinet to be defeated.

N. W. Rowell, leader of the Liberals, had a narrow escape from defeat in his riding, North Oxford, as he was elected by only 38 majority.

The Conservativ gains are: Bruce, South; Haldimand; Lambton, East; Ontario, South.

New Ridings—Niagara Falls, Toronto, Parkdale, Toronto, Riverdale.

Liberal gains—Brant, North; Brant, South; Essex, North; South Essex; Middlesex, North; Ottawa, East; Ottawa, West; Peterboro, West; Prince Edward; Wellington, South.

New Ridings—Cochrane, Lincoln and Windsor.

Recounts are probable in North Wentworth, West Kent, North Bruce and East Lambton, where the majorities as unofficially reported are very close. There are also possibilities of recounts being demanded in North Brant, South Essex and South Oxford.

The great record of the Conservative party in this campaign is ascribed in a marked degree to the personality of Sir James himself. The great speech made by the Premier in his first appearance in the campaign at Massey Hall, Toronto, caught the pulse of public favor.

No. 3 TRAIN NOW CARRIES THE MAIL

Postmaster Hall has received word from the Post Office authorities that in future mail for Redcliff will be carried on No. 3 train as well as on all other trains as previously. The new service was put into operation at once and will be continued as long as the present C. P. R. schedule is in force.

As a result of this we now have the best mail service we ever had and we compliment the authorities as well as the different organizations in town for their prompt action in the matter.

Mail from and to Redcliff is now carried on trains No. 3 at 9.10 and No. 13 at 22.20 westbound, and on No. 4 at 15.55 eastbound.

The present system now does away with the long wait from Saturday till Tuesday without any mail from the east, as was the case heretofore.

STURGIS—BISHOP.

At the home of the bridegroom in the western part of town, Tuesday evening, Mr. William John Sturgis and Miss Helna Bishop, of England, were united in marriage by the Rev. R. V. Kinkl. After the ceremony was over a number of friends came in to enjoy the wedding supper. Mr. and Mrs. Sturgis will make Redcliff their home. We wish them all happiness and prosperity.

Mr. F. R. Courtnell, who has been attending the S. O. E. convention at Edmonton, returned home yesterday. He reports an excellent time. The next convention will be held at Lethbridge.

NO ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL SAYS SCHOOL BOARD

Meeting Authorizing Same Was Not In Order — Subsequent Meeting Turns Down Proposition.

The regular meeting of the School Board was held Thursday evening in the office of A. J. Nicholson. Chairman Brondfoot and the full board being present.

At the opening of the meeting Mr. Hays claimed the last meeting held was not in order as proper notice had not been given. When this matter was brought to the attention of the Board Mr. Hays' point was sustained and the business done at last meeting was declared void. Most of the business done at the last meeting was, however, approved by the full board until it came to the question of employing an assistant principal. Mr. Hays thought the time was not ripe for such a move and besides did not think it wise to place a man over the present principal and ask Mr. Thorp to act as assistant. In this he was supported by Mr. Barber, while Messrs. Nicholson and Hall supported a motion to engage Mr. Thorp as assistant. This made a tie and the Chairman voted against the motion.

On motion of Trustees Nicholson and Hayes instructions were given to have the necessary forms filled in giving the bond branch of the Department of Education at Edmonton permission to dispose of school debentures and have same forwarded to the proper authorities.

Moved by Mr. Hays seconded by Mr. Hall that all lady teachers on last terms' staff be re-engaged, carried.

On motion of Messrs. Hall and Nicholson Miss Ogden and Miss McLaren were re-engaged at $750 per annum.

A letter was presented from the Department of Education authorizing the borrowing of $25,000 for building ward schools.

In answer to a question from Mr. Hays as to which school would be built and put in operation first the Chairman said he thought the ones in the south end and in Arlington were most needed at present.

When the question of renewing some insurance policies came up Mr. Hays said h thought the insurance on all school buildings, etc., should be equally divided among the firms in town which are in that business and not all given to the one. After some discussion it was decided that in future this should be done.

The caretaker was engaged for the summer holidays to keep the grounds and school in condition and look after the trees, and be paid half the regular salary.

Some small accounts were ordered to be paid after which the board adjourned.

The Flight of Empress Eugenie

The events of 1870-71 were tragic in their effect upon the life of that lovely butterfly, the Empress Eugenie. At the conclusion of the war he had ascended as gaily Napoleon III. was a prisoner for the fourth time in his chequered life. Sedan had been his undoing, and Paris wreaked vengeance on his consort by besieging her in the Tuileries.

One Sunday afternoon the Empress resolved to attempt an escape. It was four o'clock, and all money, and was without food. Somehow procured her a cab, and she passed through the streets unrecognized save by one little boy. Her "cocher" took her to two houses inhabited by Royalists, but both families were away from home.

After a weary journey fraught with fatigue and anxiety, she arrived at Deauville, near Trouville, in a Normandy peasant's cart forty-eight hours after her flight from the capital. A well-wisher introduced her to Sir John Fox Burgoyne, whose yacht, the Gazelle, was waiting in port to convey his wife to England on her return from Switzerland.

Sir John, whose statue now stands in a corner of Carlton Gardens, bravely arranged to take her majesty across the channel to a place of safety. This, however, was sooner promised than it could be performed. A fearful storm raged, and in the early morning of September 7th the vessel capsized in the Bay of Biscay, and with the ship sank Sir John Burgoyne's only son, V.C., the commander.

Ignorant of the sad news, the owner of the Gazelle set sail as soon as the tempest slightly lulled, even then they experienced a terrible passage, and the yacht only reached Ryde after twelve hours' conflict with wind and wave.

Sir John escorted his royal passenger to an hotel, where she stayed the night before continuing her journey to Hastings, where her son, the Prince Imperial, had just arrived with three other exiles.

Farming on Vancouver Island

It has been said that agriculture is declining in British Columbia, the statement being based on limited observation. Live statistics for the past year show a slight decrease in dairying. This is largely owing to the fact of the acquisition of farming lands contiguous to cities for subdivision and residential purposes thus putting out of business many farmers that used to supply the cities of Victoria and Vancouver, with dairy and other farm products. There has, however, been a considerable increase in dairying in the outlying districts and it will only be a very short time before this loss is made up by distance from the new centres of population.

Mr. W. T. Scott, deputy commissioner of agriculture for the province has forwarded a report on the agricultural progress of Vancouver Island to the Victoria board of trade. In it he states that poultry raising is increasing by leaps and bounds. There are many people engaged in this profitable phase of farming, and making very good returns. The southern part of Vancouver island undoubtedly is destined to become the Petaluma of British Columbia. There are very few countries in the world, and certainly none in our Dominion of Canada, which offer such good prospects for successful poultry raising as Vancouver Island.

Many farmers on Vancouver Island keep a small flock of sheep on their places, but there is room for a large development. The profits to be realized from sheep are probably greater in proportion to the amount of capital invested than any other line of the live stock industry.

Beer From the Bank of England

The Bank of England has the right in common with some other old established businesses, to sell beer by retail. This power was granted by Charter in 1694, and it has never been taken away from it. The bank could, therefore, if it chooses, start its business as a public-house tomorrow, or it could send round a special "Bank of England" brew, and bottled stout, delivered in its own drays at your back door, with a facsimile of the chief cashier's signature and the label of each bottle as a guarantee of purity. The dean and chapter of St. Paul's Cathedral can also lay claim to a similar privilege, with the right, in addition, to brew their own beer. St. Paul's brewhouse formerly stood at the corner of the entrance to Doctors' Common from the church yard, and an average of between six hundred and seventy thousands gallons of "strong ale" were brewed there every year. The sale of this, however, was confined to the ordinary precincts.—Sheffield Weekly Telegraph.

Bride's First Mistake

An amusing incident recently took place in a hotel at a popular seaside resort. At one of the tables in the writing room sat the young and charming Mrs. Newlywed busily engaged on a letter. Suddenly she stopped, laid down her pen and gazed out of the window; then she stared at the ceiling, evidently deep in thought. Finally she made a number of jottings on the blotter beside her, examined them carefully and at length resumed her letter. A base and unselfish fellow-lounger prompted the correspondent to take his seat at that table not long afterward. In the blotter, each word followed by a formidable question mark, was the mysterious inscription: "Happyness? Happiness? Happyness?" And, alas, Mrs. N. had made the first mistake in her married life. The first two words had a determined line drawn through them.—Tasgow News.

An Indian Ghost Story

Several years ago I had a studio in Albuquqe, New Mexico, and the walls of my reception rooms and office were hung with large photographs of Indians. One day I was visited by six men of the Navajo tribe who, after much smoking and visiting, made known the real cause of their call. Directly over my desk was a framed portrait of one of the old medicine men of their tribe, who had just died. Believing that a part of his soul was imprisoned in the portrait—else how could it look so like him?—they asked me if I would not destroy it, so that his spirit might be released and be at peace. I immediately took the print from the frame and tore it into tiny shreds as they looked on with silent approval. After thanking me they each shook my hand in turn and filed quietly out of the room. They did not suspect that there might still be in existence other copies of the picture or a negative.—Karl Moon in Leslie's.

NEW HOPE FOR SUFFERERS FROM PARALYSIS

There are cases of paralysis that cannot be cured. But that is far different from saying that every case of paralysis is incurable. There is absolute proof that many forms of this disease are curable. Of the cases that cannot be cured many can be so benefitted that the formerly hopeless sufferer will once more find life worth living.

Attention is called to the remarkable cures that have been effected in case of partial disorders, by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Some of these cures are little wonderful as to challenge belief, but in every case the statements have been carefully verified and may be investigated by anyone interested. In this connection the case of Miss B. Millehan, of St. John, N.B., is worthy of the most careful attention. Miss Millehan says: "Some three years ago I was taken seriously ill with diphtheria. The doctors brought me safely through this dread trouble, and I was assumed to be well. But two weeks later I took a relapse, my throat and limbs becoming paralyzed. I could neither speak nor walk. I was under the care of a medical care, and after a few weeks was able to sit up in bed, but my throat was still contracted somewhat and I could only utter unintelligible sounds. I was treated by three of the St. John's best physicians, but this trouble and my case was given up as incurable. As friend advised me to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but I had spent so much on medicine without help that I thought it would be only a further waste of money. However, I felt myself growing daily weaker and weaker, and I decided as a last chance that I would try the Pills. By the time I had taken half a dozen boxes I could walk across the floor, something doctors had told me could never happen again. I then continued taking the pills, my speech returned, and I felt myself in perfect health. My friends thought my recovery nothing short of a miracle, and I think myself that I have to thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I am living today, and I feel confident they can do quite as much for others as they did for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effect cures in cases of this kind because they make new, rich, red blood, which feeds and strengthens the nerves, and tone up the whole system. If you are in need of a medicine give these pills a trial. We are confident you will not be disappointed. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lighthouse Bird Perches

Bird perches on lighthouses will soon be put to the test as a device for saving the lives of hundreds of birds who, in the ordinary way, would perish on striking the lenses of the powerful lights during their flights in England for the summer. Recent observations has led to the belief that the birds are not killed as a rule by dashing against the light, but by sheer weariness. The lighthouses probably disturb the instinct of the birds for direction. If the light is made to flash they keep the sense of direction intact. If they stop and circle around the light they become temporarily dazed.

The Royal Society for the Preservation of Birds is interested in this scheme, and it is hoped to make bird perches a permanent equipment of the lighthouse.

A Debt Discharged

By Edgar Wallace

Ward, Lock & Co., Limited

And whilst Gold and Holder were attending to their business in New York, all London was asking: "Where were the Comstock Heirs?"

The Post Journal hasted it in big type, asked it again in smaller type, double headed; called it "a remarkable occurrence," "a mystery." Being a wise journal, this paper steered clear of suggesting that there might be any foul play. It speculated upon the possibility of the Comstock Bells having come back to London to spend their honeymoon, and had a little article on London as a honeymoon resort. It hinted at the supernatural, and hoped that nothing had happened to the young people. Then it grew bolder, for its busy correspondents throughout the continent had been sending the young people, and had sought unsuccessfully.

Where was Mr. Comstock Bell?

His friends treated the matter as a joke, and rival newspapers suggested that his reporter had been misled and was desirous of creating a little sensation in an admittedly dull season. Whereupon Jackson sought the two men who had been his companions on the night, only to find they had disappeared from London.

On the sixth day following the publication of his story a letter came to the office of the Post Journal. It was dated Lucerne, typewritten on Switzerland Hotel notepaper, and ran:

"Dear Sir,—We have read with a great deal of interest, a little annoyance, and some amusement the speculations of your representative as to where we are spending our holiday, though we were not aware that our movements created so much interest.

"We should be very grateful to you if you would allow us to enjoy the privacy which is our right as individuals. We trust that you will have the courtesy to make this known to the many friends we possess in London, and that your interest in our welfare will now be confined to the silent interest which we feel sure you have in all your readers."

It was signed "Comstock Bell," and underneath, in a feminine hand, "Verity Bell."

The Editor of the Post Journal handed the letter to the crestfallen Jackson. A big, broad-shouldered man, elderly and white-haired; clean shaven, with a voice like the booming of the sea. He growled out a few pleasantries at his fellow sufferer's head.

"Seems to have made us look pretty foolish, Jackson," he said.

Jackson wisely said nothing. The kind old man got off his chair and the editor entered. The chief handed him the letter.

"Dress this up," he said. "Explain that whilst we were certain that Mr. Bell was well, and there was not much mystery about his disappearance, we were interested in the physical side of it."

"But," interrupted Jackson, "would it not be as well to ask our man at Lucerne to confirm the fact that these people are staying there?"

The editor scowled at him.

"I don't know why we should waste any more money and energy on the matter," he said deliberately. "If they find out we are making inquiries they might be unpleasant. It's now eight, and by Swiss time it will be nine o'clock; I doubt whether we should get a reply in time."

"I'll wire him to-night," said Jackson.

At eleven-thirty the chief sub-editor strolled into his executive's room.

"It's a nine-day Comstock Bell mystery has fallen through," he said, taking a chair from the other's desk. "There's very little news of any kind worth printing to-night."

Knoxville, N. S.—"For about five years I was bothered with a light rash which would appear most heavily on my legs and back. The trouble's at most in the spring of the year. They said it was eczema. The rash itched and burned and my scratching irritated the breaking out. After it broke out I could not obtain more than three hours' sleep on account of the itching. My legs and back were a* solid mass of itching sores.

"I was given some salve and after using this preparation about a week the disease became worse and I could not obtain any rest at night. I used all the patent preparations on the market but they only seemed to increase the suffering and did not give any relief whatever. About this time a friend recommended Cuticura Ointment to me. However, I had not faith in it, as nothing else had done me, but he insisted that I try Cuticura Ointment so I purchased a box. The first application gave relief and in about a week the sores were healing and I was able to obtain a good night's rest, the first I had enjoyed for many months. I continued the treatment for another month and by that time all signs of the disease had vanished." (Signed) Willard F. Aden, May 16, 1913.

"So I observe," said the other drily. "Was there nothing at the Old Bailey?"

"One or two cases," said the other carelessly. "A man named Willetts has been charged with the forgery of a bank note."

"That's an unusual case; can't you make anything of that?" said the sub-editor.

The chief sub-editor shook his head.

"Happened ten years ago," he said, "and the man pleaded guilty. There was nothing sensational about the circumstance. It was forged in Paris, and seems to have been the only one of its kind."

"What did he get?"

"A year's hard labor," said the chief sub-editor.

"Let me see!" The editor rubbed his chin reflectively. "I think not that the time when a number of young men started a crime club?"

The sub-editor shook his head.

"It did not come out in the evidence, so we can't give it," he said. "I think the judge had a down on the make parliament the big story of the day."

A boy brought a telegram and handed it to the sub-editor. He looked at it and read it carefully; then he passed it on to his chief.

"H'm," said the editor, "that's curious."

"What is?" asked the sub-editor.

"Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Comstock Bell have been seen at Lucerne, and neither are nor have been staying at the Switzerland."

They sat without speaking for a minute.

"Who is this from?" asked the editor.

"It is from one of our own men who is taking his holiday at Lucerne. I thought it would be best in a case like this not to depend upon the local correspondent."

The editor touched his bell.

"This is good enough," he said. "Tell Mr. Jackson I want to see him," as the messenger came in answer to the bell. "Jackson will make a story up; it will make the Comstock Bell disappearance the story of the day; we have ample material."

At that moment Jackson entered, and the editor passed the telegram to him.

"Get a column out of this, and do it quick," he ordered.

CHAPTER XIII.

Wentworth Gold returned to England after the end of the year. He and Washington had been more satisfactory than he had hoped. The office was recognized the difficulty of his task, and were almost sympathetic. They feared that he had been appointment for as the result of an unexpected communication from the White House, which was a pleasing way of he should be summoned and contented himself with the uncompromising instruction that he was to return to America immediately.

He had not been Holder during his stay in Washington, and he knew that he was the kind of man who spent his greatest pleasure in forging and re-crossing the Atlantic between Liverpool and New York. Such men frequently never go outside the city's confines.

He did not know that Holder's visit had been a very brief one, and that the criminal organization was alarmed to the point of panic, and that Holder had travelled at express speed. In fact because the heads of the organization had received information that unless his plan of campaign was considerably modified, it stood to grave risk of detection.

Holder preceded Gold by a few days.

Returning to England, Gold had time to consider the mystery of Comstock Bell. The American newspapers had made much of the disappearance in the London press, and Gold had read little else during the voyage that he was a friend of Comstock Bell's.

The main clue that Gold had to work upon was the discovery that he had made in the house in Cadogan Square. This was the "Daily Mail," which Cook's issue their tickets. The two vouchers were there intact, with the exception that the counterfoils which carried the passengers from London to Dover and from Dover to Calais had been extracted. For the rest of the journey so far as Victoria, the tickets reached and found the fact that the railway coupon and the last ticket had been detached, there was the possibility that Bell had left them behind. But the ticket from Calais to Amiens had been punched accidentally, possibly, by the inspector at Victoria. That disposed of the suggestion that they had been left behind in the hurry of departure.

Gold quite expected to hear on his arrival in London that Comstock Bell had returned. He was astonished to find half a dozen letters from the man himself awaiting him.

He dressed from Paris the day following the arrival of the earlier pair. Another letter, with the post date of Lucerne, typewritten on Switzerland notepaper, of their passage, gave sketchy details of the journey, described the weather, and homed concluding enough, that London had better favored. The third letter was from Vienna—the thing was a mystery. None of the letters spoke of the lost tickets—a little item which usually annoys a traveler, however rich he may be. Gold candidly admitted to himself that he could not understand it.

Your professional detective, if he is worth his salt, has no friends in business hours. And Wentworth Gold was a professional detective, none the less so because his social position was assured, or because he dealt with irregular happenings in high places. His instinct of the law was greater than any other he possessed. If Comstock Bell had been his own brother, he would have set himself as readily and as unhesitatingly to work to discover the wherefore of his curious behavior.

A note from Scotland Yard brought him to the assistant commissioner's office.

Captain Symons was a man of considerable ability—he had won his position as chief of the criminal investigation department by sheer merit. A spare, lean man, slightly bald, with a pair of steady blue eyes that looked upon you through and through, and a light moustache; he was one of the most famous men in London.

King George in Napoleon's Bed

During his recent visit to France, where he was welcomed with boundless enthusiasm, King George slept for all three nights in a Royal bed, used long ago by Napoleon Bonaparte.

His visit marked the completion of ten years of the entente cordiale inaugurated by the late King Edward.

Things had been going on but poorly between France and England when Sir Nat Rothschild was raised to the throne—a personality already popular among the French, whom he inherited from his father who assisted King Edward determined to go to Paris. His reception would do understood. "Not correct," but no more. Nothing could resist his smile, his genial courtesy, and his illimitable art of saying and doing the right thing.

"How long do you stay?" a Frenchman asked a member of his suite.

"We leave on Thursday," was the reply.

"I'm glad of that. If you had stayed till Sunday the people would have made him king of France."

His popularity with the Parisians continued all his life through, and is evidently being extended also to his son—the present king.

Don't Drink Water That is Pure

The familiar statement that the old topper refused to drink Croton, for it would "rust his iron constitution," may not be so much of a joke as it was always been considered. Recent scientific investigations cast serious doubts upon the benefits of water as a beverage except in very moderate quantities. Surprisingly enough, water which has been made chemically pure by distilling, has been found to do even more injury to the human system than other kinds.

A long series of experiment on plants has shown that distilled water which offers a high resistance to electric currents, is almost fatal to plant life. Such water would prove harm to a plant's cells by extracting the electrolytes and disarranging the chemical and physical parts of the plants. Protoids are the basis of the cell's health, and they are just the elements which are destroyed, by absolutely pure water.

The fact of the matter seems to be that there is danger of drinking water that is too pure. The presence of certain impurities in a water is greatly to its healthfulness. Even a small amount of mineral salts has the effect of making water a harmless beverage. Distillation makes water absolutely pure by destroying disease germs, but at the same time it removes certain salts which are of great value to our bodies.

Science now says that well water is a good kind to drink—but that distilled water is dear to drink because it has been more thoroughly oxygenated. We ought never to drink distilled water, it is declared, because there is good reason to believe that it is as harmful to the cells of the human body as to those of plants.

Power of Human Bones

Human bones are tremendously strong and possessed of a marvelous resisting power, indeed, the bones of the frailest, most delicate looking woman are stronger than the strongest oak.

Of course, a bone is hollow and that is one of the chief reasons it resists such extreme weights. For instance, a small bone which is no more than a square millimeter in diameter will hold in suspension without breaking some 35 pounds. While a like size oak of similar width will not hold more than 20 pounds. Indeed, the average bone of the average man is stronger by one-half than that of solid oak.

Nature, in fact, knows how bones are constructed, being made hollow and consequently stronger than if they were solid and heavier. In the same mechanics which have followed the world over. Constructive engineers employ tubes instead of solid cylinders.

In the case of animals, thousands of years ago one reason of their bulky frame is attributed by scientists as due to the fact that their bones were solid and added to their weight.

Boxer Buried in Historic Westminster

At a lecture on "The Chapels of Westminster" the lecturer surprised his audience by stating that a champion prize-fighter was buried in the abbey. Referring to a mark's area on one of the groups of statuary near the north door of the abbey, he said:

"It was actually modified from the arm of a verger at the abbey, named Burton, whose ambition it would like to be buried in the abbey. Reping in the affirmative, Burton asked what the inscription would be scribed on his tomb that he was champion prize-fighter of England, and to this the dean consented.

"When the time came, however, it was decided by the chapter that the inscription, should be omitted, and those who knew where to find Burton's tomb would see on it merely a blank space."

Argentine Humor

On the prairies of Argentina, where the chief mode of travel is by horseback, travelers often make use of the Spanish expression, "comprar mongo," the literal translation of that phrase is "to buy ground." The South American rough riders think that when you fall off your horse you occupy the ground where you land almost as if you owned it, and if you stick a hole in the earth where you strike, as you are very likely to do when you are riding a very young mount, they say that you have bought the ground and begun to dig the cellar for a house.—Youth's Companion.

On the day of the admission of M. Rostand to the French academy the author of "Cyrano" and "L'Aiglon" gave a breakfast to a few of his friends, the guest of honor being Mme. Bernhardt. At the close of the breakfast she arose and in an impressive manner drank a glass, held it high and said, "I drink to the greatest of French dramatists, M. Rostand, and I drink after the Greek manner!" She then poured the contents of her glass over her head and gown.

Two of Rostand's small sons were sitting at a side table wearing new velvet suits, also made for the occasion. In the silence which followed Bernhardt's dramatic tribute the elder of the boys arose and, imitating her manner, said, "I drink to the greatest of poets, my papa, and I also drink in the Greek fashion!" He straightway deluged himself and his small brother with the contents of his glass.

Birds That Shine in Dark

That certain birds of prey are sometimes luminous at night is a fact which has been observed by naturalists. It is explained by the presence on their feathers of the phosphorescent spores of certain fungi that grow upon the trees in which they roost. But the Bulletin of the National Acclimatization Society of France records the observation of a white swan that was luminous all night from July to October, that was the color of silver and like birds that inhabited the same pond. Indeed, the average luminosity of the swan is greater than that of the other birds.

What is 'Good Tea'?

One day a woman asked her grocer if he had any 'good' tea. The grocer replied:

Red Rose Tea "is Good Tea"

There you have the origin of our modest slogan—the reason for it. Red Rose is a blend of the best Indian and Ceylon teas. That's why all qualities of Red Rose are famous for rich strength as well as delicacy of flavor.

In 1 lb. and ½ lb. lead packages at 40c., 50c. and 60c.—also in tins of 3 lbs. and larger.

N.B.—Coffee users will find Red Rose Coffee as generously good as Red Rose Tea. 134

The Palm Tree of Capri

I knew a palm tree upon Capri. It stood in select society of shining figleaves and lustrous oleanders. It overtopping the balcony and so looked far overtopping down upon the blue Mediterranean. Through the dream mists of Southern Italian noons it looked up the broad bay of Naples and saw vague Vesuvius melting away, or at sunset the isles of the Sirens, or in the full blaze of midnight the crags of Sorrento. And from the Sorrento where Tasso was born it looked across to pleasant Posilippo, where Virgil is buried, and to stately Ischia. Many and many a night I saw that was fairest and most famous in the bay of Naples.—George William Curtis.

PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY.

Money spent at home means helping to build up schools, churches, sidewalks, sewers, roads, etc., in your own town. Money sent out of town to departmental stores, etc., means helping to build up some other town or city. Which do you want to help, your own or some other town?

TAX NOTICES MISLEADING.

During the past week this office has received several letters and scores of verbal complaints against what appears to be a "hold-up" game in connection with the collection of taxes in arrears.

It appears that on or about May 11 notices were sent out drawing attention to the fact that Judge Carpenter would hold a court of confirmation on a certain date. The notice also concluded with the statement: "You appear to have an interest in lots so and so."

Those who have complained at this office all state that the notice mentioned above was the first intimation they ever had regarding their holdings, yet a month later, or about June 16, they get another notice that their taxes were in arrears and that a penalty of $2 per lot was added because these taxes were not paid within the specified time.

Apart from the fact that these parties did not get any notice of the amount of their taxes previous to the one above mentioned, there is, to our mind, a much more serious side to the matter. We have before us a copy of the "Town Act," and also a copy of the notices sent out on June 16. The latter does not convey the same meaning as we would interpret from the act. The act says "the penalty shall be $2 for each 'parcel' of land," and the notices say "$2 per lot is added to each parcel."

To our mind there is a vast difference between the two. The dictionary says "parcel" means "a group composed of an indefinite number or quantity."

One of those making complaint at the office had one lot on which the taxes were 50 cents and the penalty was $2. Another had a parcel of two lots, on which the taxes were $1 and the penalty $4. A third had a parcel of ten lots on which the taxes were $5 and the penalty $20, making the total $25.

The reason given in the act for placing a two dollar penalty on these unpaid taxes is that sum goes to pay the Judge, the advertising and the postage in connection with the proceedings.

We have no fault to find with the penalty where only one lot is concerned, but as the Town Act makes a distinction between a lot and a parcel of land we are convinced the notices sent out are entirely misleading and not in accordance with the meaning of the act.

Common sense seems to back up our contention, as it certainly does not cost any more for the advertising and postage in connection with a parcel of land containing ten lots than it does for one lot.

This being the case we take it that the act means that where a person is assessed for a number of lots in one place with only one assessment notice and one tax notice made out for the whole parcel he should only be assessed a $2 penalty for the whole parcel.

If the wording of the notices sent out is the correct interpretation of the act, namely that a delinquent must pay $2 penalty on every lot in every parcel then, it is a most unfair and Czarlike law and a disgrace to any civilized community.

We would strongly advise any who have received such notice to take the proper steps to bring this matter before the Judge when he holds court in Medicine Hat on July 10 next.

ACTIONS REWARDED.

As a result of the strenuous efforts put up by the different organisations in town against the most unsatisfactory mail service which was handed over to Redcliff after the new summer time table came into effect on the C. P. R., we have been able to get the matter rectified and now have a better mail service than ever.

Those interested in bringing the matter to the attention of the proper authorities were the Review, City Council, the Board of Trade, the Conservative Association and private citizens.

With such an array of influences brought into action ultimate success was assured, and the whole thing goes to prove that Redcliff possesses men and organizations which are always found in the firing line when matters pertaining to the welfare of the town are at stake.

Besides having our wrongs righted the outcome of our actions should show those in a position to do so, that they cannot use their positions to boost their towns when it is to the disadvantage of adjoining towns.

OH, OR BOOZE.

The Medicine Hat Times and the Toronto Saturday Night have been crossing swords lately and so far as we can see from the distance the Saturday Night comes out of the fray looking like the change from a free lunch counter.

The Toronto representative of the Eastern pessimistic aggregation finds fault with the Times and other Western papers for carrying oil advertisements, but the Times exposes the Saturday Night's inconsistency in its advocacy of the public welfare in the following paragraph:

"In its last issue (Toronto Saturday Night) we find four advertisements for lager beer, one for gin, two for sherry, three for ale, three for port wine and a full page is devoted to extolling the merits of Schlitz beer. The people will be at least just as well off if they invest their money in oil stocks as they would be if they invested it in gin. Even if they do deal with a wild catter they will have their health and strength unimpaired, when the results are totalled."

The Times is quite right. We would much prefer to have the people of the West lose a few dollars in oil stocks than lose their honor, their self respect, and ruin their homes by spending their money purchasing the commodities advertised in Toronto Saturday Night.

SEA DISASTERS IN 48 YEARS.

The Free Press of Winnipeg publish a list of the most notable sea disasters for the past forty-eight years. The record may not be accurate, but we summarize them in ten year periods as follows: From 1866 to 1875 inclusive there were lost five ships and 2,543 lives; from 1876 to 1886, four ships and 1,500 lives; from 1886 to 1896, nine ships and 2,963 lives; from 1896 to 1906, four ships and 1822 lives; from 1906 to present time, thirteen ships and 4,190 lives, 2,600 of whom went down with the Titanic and Empress of Ireland. The wireless telegraph has saved hundreds of lives during the past ten-year period in the cases referred to, but the telegraph cannot stay the storm, nor dispel the fog, nor prevent collision or fire at sea.

SCOUT NEWS.

Our boys having passed the tenderfoot test are now working to get through on second class for their badge, but before they get through each scout will have to pass all of the following things:

Have a knowledge of elementary first aid and bandaging, know the semephore or Morse sign for every letter in the alphabet. Follow a track half a mile in twenty-five minutes. Go a mile in twelve minutes at scout's pace (twenty paces walking and twenty paces running alternately). Lay and light a wood fire in the open using not more than two matches. Cook a quarter pound of meat and two potatoes in the regulation billy can. Have at least 50 cents in a savings bank. Know the sixteen principal points of the compass. He then becomes a second class scout.

Fifteen boys, with the scoutmaster, took in the sports at Medicine Hat last Wednesday, not being able to get a train in time to see the parade, the boys voted to walk, and we all enjoyed the change of having a good walk after breakfast. Each boy took enough food for two meals and remained down till 7 o'clock and by that time we all were glad to get back to old Redcliff and home. On the train several of the boys did their daily good turn by giving up their seats to the ladies, and one and all voted that they had a good time.

CANADA NEEDS THE OIL.

The Bounty Offered May Bankrupt the Government Unless Repealed.

The importance of the oil discoveries being made in Alberta will be appreciated to their fullest extent when it is stated that the Dominion imported petroleum products to the value of $13,389,326 in 1913, a large increase over previous years. The Canadian output of petroleum in 1913 was 223,080 barre's, on which a bounty of 60 cents a barrel was paid, amounting to $119,741.97. If the production of oil in the Alberta fields is anywhere near expectations the bounty to be paid will bankrupt the government unless the measure is repealed. The production of crude oil in Canada has been steadily declining.

COMMUNICATIONS.

While we are always glad to publish communications dealing with questions pertaining to the welfare of the town we do not hold ourselves responsible for views expressed in them. We will be pleased to publish any such so long as the privilege is not abused, and always reserve the right to accept or reject them. We will allow no personal spite to be aired under this heading.—Ed.

Says Penalty Is Unreasonable.

To Editor of Redcliff Review:

Dear Sir—The first intimation received of taxes on some North Redcliff property showed that the amount of the tax was one dollar on my two lots and that there was a penalty of four dollars for not having paid same. Apart from the fact that this was my first intimation of the amount, I think the penalty is out of all reason in proportion, and something should certainly be done, to have such a by-law readjusted which allows such unreasonable treatment.

Upon receipt of an ordinary notice I would have paid the amount of the tax right away. Yours truly,

FAIR PLAY.

We have dealt with this matter editorially in this issue.—Ed.

SLIGHT DECREASE IN COST OF LIVING.

The cost of living in Canada showed a slight decrease in May, according to statistics issued by the Labor Department, although it is still higher than it was in the corresponding period last year. The department's index number of wholesale prices for May was 136.2, as compared with 136.8 in April, and 135.4 in May, last year. The slight drop in May is usual owing to the abundance of dairy products.

On the average fish, dairy products, miscellaneous foods, meats, fuel and furns were on lower levels, but advances appeared in grains and fodder, fruits and vegetables, tiles, hides, leathers and lumber. The upward tendency in meats, which has been so noticeable during the past two years, was continued in May. The indications are that the present month will see another slight rise in the index number. Scarcity is being reported in potatoes, and an upward tendency is noted in eggs in many localities.

CROP PROSPECTS ARE MUCH BRIGHTER.

That the downpour of the past week, intermittent though it has been, has entirely changed the complexion of the agricultural situation in Alberta is evident from a perusal of the reports received from many widely separated points throughout the province.

In practicaly every case, farmers are reported as greatly changed in spirits over the timely arrival of copious showers.

The Presbyterian Church.

Next Sabbath evening in the Empress Theatre Mr. Gordon will give the first of a series of studies of social ideals, the subject being "Brotherhood." At 11 o'clock in the church the subject will be "The Help of the Holy Spirit." The Sabbath school meets at 2.15. The officers of the school wish to thank those who helped to make the picnic on Dominion Day so pleasant and successful. Prayer service on Wednesday evening at 8, with a talk on rescue missions. Come and hear it. The choir meets on Thursday evening.

Church of England.

Sunday next, Holy Communion, 11 a. m.; Sunday school, 2.30; even song, 7.30. Wednesday, Alfresco concert. Children's choir practice every Wednesday at 7.30; even song and full choir practice every Thursday at 8 p. m. Church collecting cards should be sent in at once to the treasurer, Mr. J. Harbert, or to Rev. H. C. B. Gibson. All services and meetings are held in the Parish Hall, corner of Fifth avenue and Fifth street. Visitors always welcomed.

Baptist Church.

Services in Reid's Hall on Third street. Morning worship at 11 o'clock, subject, "The Power of a Victorious Life;" children's sermon, "The Poisoned Wells;" Sunday school at 12 o'clock, subject, "The Laborers in the Vineyard;" evening worship at 7.30, subject, "Jehovah-Jireh." The first of a short series on "Sacred Spots in Old Testament History." Remember the change in place. We are leaving the A muse U Theatre, and will make our new church home in Redcliff Hall, the new lodge hall across from the school grounds on Third street. There will be special music by the orchestra.

Men's Christian League.

Last Sunday the Rev. H. C. B. Gibson gave a very helpful address on the "Nature of God." We hope to hear him again in some of our later meetings. The mandolin and banjo duet by Messrs. Harvey and Hinkle and the beautiful solo by Mrs. Washburn were well received. This coming Sunday the Rev. Mr. Hodgson, of the Washington Avenue Methodist Church, of Medicine Hat, will address the meeting on the subject, "Some Phases of Citizenship." There will be special music. This meeting is open to both men and women. Do not miss it. Remember the time—4 o'clock.

DO MONEY AND RELIGION MIX

"Can a Millionaire be a Christian?" This was one of the subjects arranged by a committee of the Montreal Methodist conference for discussion at next year's gathering as a prayer hour topic, but when it was broached last Wednesday afternoon there was considerable objection to it.

The inference was too strong for some of the delegates, in view of the number of rich men who are members of the Methodist church, so a substitute subject "Christianity and Wealth" will take the place of "Can a Millionaire be a Christian?"

England's Newest Colony

The Rev. Dr. William S. Rainsford, who has spent two years among the wild men and beasts of East Africa, speaking recently of the fertility of the soil in England's newest colony, declared it was richer than that of the Canadian northwest.

"Two or three crops a year can be raised," he said, "and corn grows from twelve to fifteen feet high in four months. No fertilizer is needed, as the soil is too rich. I have seen a gum tree grow nine-eighth feet high in four months. Still not one acre in 5,000 is properly tilled. This land will raise the best cotton in the world and the best coffee.

Bill's Terrible Condition

There was only a thin partition between the car parlor and the taproom of the suburban hostelry, writes "Il" in the Manchester Guardian, so that I could not help hearing what was perhaps a confidence about a certain Bill's terrible condition the previous afternoon. "Well, to cut a long story short," said the voice, which was husky, probably with emotion, "I had to set 'im on a doorstep and leave 'im there. 'E must 'a' fell asleep, and 'is 'at dropped on to th' footpath, an' would yer believe it, when 'e woke up there was 11 pence in it."

In the Balance

"Give me two seats in the balance," said a man, stopping up to the box office window the other afternoon.

"In the what?" asked the ticket seller, fearing that she had misunderstood.

"I said I wanted two seats in the balance," said the man.

The ticket seller racked her brain trying to solve the puzzle, and, finally, giving it up, she asked the man to explain just what he wanted.

"On this sign out here it says balcony 35 cents for the first three rows, it says balance 15 cents, I want two in the balance."

Then the ticket seller understood.—Exchange.

An Austrian theological professor, Dr. Ernest Sellin, engaged in the excavation work in Palestine, reports that he has discovered in the hill of Balanta, in Samaria, the foundations of the ancient Israelite capital, Shechem.

Although the professor was only able to work less than three weeks, he succeeded in uncovering some very interesting objects connected with the various periods of the city's history—Canaanite, late Israelite, and Hellenic. Among them are arrows, rings, pitchers, and jugs, and other household utensils, chiefly made of silver or bronze.

Outrageous Fortune

Rastus was sorely wounded. From his face gore flowed in rivulets, and in the outer covering of his substantial head there were sundry gashes and openings. He had been the victim of a brutal assault.

The physician who treated him for his wounds was sympathetic.

"Great heavens!" he said. "Somebody has beaten you up in terrible manner. You must have been hit at least nine or ten times."

"Dat ain't no cloth," said Rastus, who was still trembling. "I don't believe I was able to git out on de way ob anything dat was throwed at me."

"Then you ought to learn a lesson from it," suggested the doctor. "Here after you ought to stay far away from people who indulge in this sort of thing."

"Dar ain't no chance," Rastus objected gloomily. "You know, boss, I ain't got de price; I'se no divo'ce."—Popular Magazine.

SUFFERERS FROM PAINFUL, RHEUMATISM

Liniments of No Avail—Must be Cured Through the Blood

Why are there so many failures in the treatment of rheumatism? Why are so many sufferers resigned to a life of pain, despairing of a permanent cure?

Because rheumatism defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. The poisons of rheumatism are in the blood and it is only through the blood that the disease can be fought successfully. Unless the blood is weak and impure rheumatism cannot get a foothold. When it does get in and impure blood is not strong enough to overcome it unless alone. It must be strengthened and purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best blood building medicine you can take. They make new blood with every dose and promptly check further progress of the disease. They make the blood so pure and strong that not the least trace of rheumatism remains. Mr. R. J. Sinclair, Goulen, N. S., says:—"About two years ago I was laid up with rheumatism. For two months I could not walk and had to stay in an invalid's chair. My feet were badly swollen and my arms seemed to be paralyzed. I had been using doctor's medicine for a long time, but it did not seem to help me and the doctor finally told me that the only thing that would cure me would be a change of climate. At this time I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and got a supply. After I had taken them for a while I found they were helping me, and I got a further supply and they completely cured me, and I have not been sick one day since. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this trouble."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicines or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Work of the Inventors

Manufacturers are almost daily in receipt of communications from inventors including patent specifications covering an invention aimed to improve his product. It is a mistake on the part of manufacturers in view such inventors as impositors. The position that "an outside man could know more about our own business than ourselves" is a fallacy that has no place in modern industrial management. If it were necessary to prove that such a position is a fallacy thousands of inventions could be cited whereby improvements, many revolutionary in industrial methods and products, were first conceived in the minds of men not even remotely connected with the industries supposedly affected and benefitted thereby.—American Machinist.

Lightning Rods

A bulletin advocating the use of lightning rods on buildings has just been issued by the Ontario department of agriculture. Prof. W. H. Day, of the staff of the Ontario Agriculture College, is the author of this bulletin, and he demonstrates, after a series of investigations covering 13 years, that lightning rods are the protection that science claims them to be. In Ontario in 1912 the efficiency of rods was 94½ per cent. From the reports of insurance companies, Prof. Day found that, in every 200 farm buildings insured, 41 were rodded, which is 21 per cent. but out of every 200 farm buildings struck by lightning only 3 were rodded, in this connection Prof. Day observes: "We should have expected 42 if the rods were good."

Lightning rods in Iowa are recorded as showing an efficiency of 98.7 per cent. Ltd inspected rods in Michigan show an efficiency of 99.9 per cent. Records in Iowa show that for the eight years 1905-1912 the average number of insurance companies carrying risks on rodded buildings was 55. The highest number of companies reporting in any one year was 68 and the lowest was 46. The total lightning claims paid by all these companies for the whole eight years on rodded buildings was only $4,464.30—an increase of $10.15 per company per year. On rodded buildings they paid lightning claims amounting to the large sum of $341,066.32, which is an average of $715.16 per company per year, and the number of unrodded buildings was the same as the rodded ones.

In Michigan where a company insures only rodded buildings which have been inspected a risk of $55,171,075 was carried during four years and damage claims arising from lightning during that time totalled only $32.

This and other proofs submitted by Prof. Day are practical demonstrations of the scientific fact that lightning rods properly installed are a protection. In giving directions for the proper rodding of buildings the reader is reminded that lightning is electricity. Prof. Day asserts that rods should be in metallic connection with the building and that no insulators should be used. This method of attachment is directly opposite to that adopted when lightning rods were first used.

Sirius the Mighty

Writing in the London Times as to the effect upon the star in the Pegasic Star Sirius were as near to us as is our own sun, Mr. Scriven Belon declares the change that would overcome land and sky would transcend everything hitherto dreamed of in the heavens. Sirius is situated a brilliant globe twenty-five times larger than the sun appears to us, emitting by millions of miles from its volcanic fire rays and coronal streamers. Bombarded by terrible heat, the earth would become red hot, its atmosphere dissipated, its vegetable covering scorched to a crisp, basalts turned into furren wastes, while iron would flow like water. The distance from us of Sirius, the nearest of the fixed stars, is so great that its rays require eight and a half years to reach us, notwithstanding that light runs 182,300 miles a second. Sirius travels through space at 1,000 miles a minute.

"Inn"—and "Hotel"

The Saxon word 'inn,' taken in the present sense, was probably in use before the conquest, whereas the purely French word 'hotel' as generally applied to "an inn of style and pretensions" does only from about the time when officers of the British army of occupation returned from Paris with enthusiastic accounts of Meurice's and a dozen other hostelries of the Rue de Rivoli and the Rue St. Honoré which quite threw the humbler accommodation offered by contemporary British inns of that period into the shade. At the commencement of the nineteenth century the French had begun to learn the hotel-keeper the science of hotel keeping, before the beginning of the twentieth century the Britain had begun to return the compliment.—Country Life.

During his stay in Washington as Chinese minister, Wu Ting Fang attended the wedding of the daughter of the chief justice of the supreme court and said to one of the bridesmaids:

"When will it be your turn to become a bride?"

"I do not know," she answered. "I have not yet been asked."

So the amiable Chinese minister said to one of a group of young men standing near by: "This is a beautiful lady. Would you not like to marry her?"

He replied, "I shall be most delighted to."

Both the young woman and the young man naturally were somewhat embarrassed by Mr. Wu's unceremonious

"I know you to be a forger," he said calmly, "and I believe you to be associated with the gang which is now flooding the United States with forged five-dollar bills. I tell you frankly that I have no proof against you, and I tell you as frankly that if I had the very hint of a clue to associate you with the crime, I would never rest till I saw you in state prison. I believe that your Shropshire printing establishment, run in the interests of the down-trodden peasantry of Russia, was a cover for forgeries on a big scale. Now you know exactly how I feel toward you, and you can take what steps you like."

"You have no proof," gasped Helder.

"Proof!" Gold laughed bitterly. "If I had proof, do you think I'd be talking to you except through prison bars. I only want a pennyworth of proof to put you out of business."

They stood under the light of a street lamp, and Gold's face was pale. For the first time in his life he had been trapped into putting a natural enemy upon his guard. He was chagrined, and his nerves were upset. He had received letters from his chief which had annoyed him; the department he had so faithfully and so successfully served, had lost its head over the matter of the forged bill.

"I see!" said Helder slowly. "Now that I know your views, I shall take such steps as are necessary to protect myself."

Gold nodded his head.

"You must be the best judge of that," he said. "So far as Mrs. Comstock is concerned, I tell you you're at liberty to go to the police, and I warn you that, from your point of view, it would be unwise to call attention to yourself."

He strode off, cursing himself as he walked that he had allowed his irritation and his growing suspicion of Helder to betray him into the faux pas he had made.

It would increase the difficulty of his work enormously if the worst were a wrong line throughout. He should have had the Shropshire establishment raided before Helder knew that he had ceased publication and the establishment of Russian printers had been dispersed. But it was too late now. If it was Helder who put the forged bills into circulation, he was operating from secret agent place which so far Gold and his men had been unable to discover.

He went to his flat, still worried. Then he remembered that his own servant knew Helder. He rang the bell and his man came.

"Cole," he said, "you know Parker, do you not?"

"Parker, sir!" asked the man.

"Yes, sir, Comstock Bell Parker."

"Oh, yes, I know him very well, sir."

"Mr. Bell has given him a holiday today; where do you think I could find him?"

"At once, sir!" asked the man, surprised.

"Tonight."

"He's probably gone to see his sister," said the man; "she's the only relation he's got in London."

"Where does she live?"

"In Dalston, sir. I've got the address somewhere," and he bustled off.

He went out of the room and came back with the address written on a piece of paper. In the meantime Gold had formed his plans. He glanced at the sheet.

"Cole, a taxi to this place, and bring back Parker if he is there. If he is not there, tell you the address of him, bring him at any hour of the night."

"I may as well settle this matter down at once," said Gold to himself when the man had gone. Tomorrow the papers would be full of the story.

He tried to read, but the terrified face of the girl he had seen at the window came between him and his book. He put it down and paced the room restlessly.

The click of the key in the lock told him Cole had returned. He went into the hall. Parker was there in the glory of his holiday raiment.

"Have you got a key of Mr. Bell's house?" asked Gold.

"Yes, sir," replied Parker.

"I want you to come with me to the house."

"Is anything wrong, sir?" asked Parker in alarm.

"Nothing, nothing," said Gold impatiently. He did not think it wise to take the man into his confidence.

They drove to Cadogan Square. It was long past midnight, and the streets were deserted. Parker opened the door.

"One moment, sir," he said, and switched on the electric light.

"Good gracious, Mr. Comstock Bell at your master's door and see if he's there."

"But, sir——"

"Go," said Gold peremptorily.

Parker ran up the stairs in a few minutes he came back.

"Did you go into the room?" asked Gold.

"Yes, sir."

"Was anybody there?"

"Not so far as I could see, sir," replied Cole.

"What room is that?" asked Gold, indicating a door.

"That's the drawing room, sir."

"Just open it," he said.

It was unlocked.

"That's very strange," said Parker. "What's very strange?" asked Gold quickly.

"This door was locked when I left the house."

"Has anybody else a key?"

"Mr. Comstock Bell," said Parker. "All the doors have Yale locks fitted into the wood so that you can hardly see where the locks is, can you?"

Gold examined the door. It was rosewood and, as the man said, it was difficult to see where the key fitted. He took an electric lamp from his pocket and flashed it on the jamb. The keyhole was the tiniest slit in the polished surface of the wood. Gold examined it carefully. There were a number of little scratches, which he judged had been recently made.

"Whoever used the key last was not well acquainted with this door," he said. "You were not using any that Mr. Comstock Bell had a duplicate set to him."

"Yes, sir," said the man.

Gold opened the door and walked in. The electric switch was on the right. He pressed the knob, and the room was flooded with light. It was empty.

The detective's nostrils widened. "Do you smell anything, Parker?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," said Parker. "there is a sort of scent in the room."

There was a faint odor of violets.

Very carefully he made a search of the room. The furniture was in its place, shrouded with linen. There were burglar alarms on the windows; they had not been disturbed. Then, in the window he saw a flat case. It was about four inches square. He stooped and picked it up and put it in his pocket. He had seen at a glance that it was a case like the one in which Cook's place the railway tickets they issue, and he knew that Comstock Bell had booked his passage through to Vienna with that agency.

The search of the remainder of the house revealed nothing more. It was empty; nobody was there. Mrs. Comstock Bell had taken a holiday.

"I think that will do, Parker," he said when he had finished his examination.

"Nothing has been touched, sir?" said the man, who had the possibility of burglary in his mind.

"No," said Gold, "nothing has been touched."

He left Parker and drove back to his flat. He thought perhaps the girl had come to him in his absence, but nobody had called.

A cabinegram was awaiting him, and an express letter.

He opened the letter eagerly, hoping it was from the girl. It was from Scotland Yard—from Chief-Inspector Grayson.

"We arrested Willetts at eleven o'clock tonight," said the message.

Gold nodded; he had asked Scotland Yard to keep him informed regarding the mysterious Willetts.

The cabinegram was more serious. It was from the chief of his department at Washington, and ran:

"Come at once. Washington. Consultation. Leave by Turanic."

Gold swore softly. The Turanic was due out of the Mersey the following day, and he spent that night in packing, and left London at six o'clock in the morning.

* * * *

Helder heard of the arrest at the club. The news came by telephone from one of his agents. He was sitting in the reading room, thinking of the events of the night when a telegram was brought to him which had been handed in at New York two hours previously. It was simple:

"Urgent, come to New York by Turanic."

It was signed by the name of a man whose word was law to Helder, and he went home to make preparations.

Thus it came about that Gold met the last man in the world he desired or expected to meet at the offices of Rustin & Rustin on the morning. Thus it happened that these two men crossed the Atlantic together, not exchanging a sentence on the voyage.

SCREAMED WITH PAIN OF SCALDED LEG

And Foot. In Bad State. Inflamed and Festered. Could Not Sleep. Completely Cured by Cuticura Ointment in Short Time.

Middle La Have, N. S.—"My sister scalded her leg and foot very badly with a pan of boiling water. She suffered so much and her leg was in a bad state. The skin was red and inflamed and it festered. She suffered dreadful pain. She scalded it in the evening and could not sleep that night and could not bear to have anything near it.

"We tried ——— and then some ——— but everything seemed to make it worse and she just screamed for pain. I told my mother about Cuticura Ointment and we got a box immediately and bandaged up her foot and leg. Two applications made quite a difference and we kept on using it and in a short time her leg and foot were completely cured." (Signed) Miss L. Parks, May 17, 1912.

New Atlantic Liners

This season will see the Atlantic service of the Canadian Pacific augmented by the addition of two new steamers. These two vessels will be of the one class cabin type, which are becoming so popular. Harding, Gurly & Company, of Glasgow, secured the contract for the building of the ships some months ago, and the construction is well under way. They are being specially constructed for the Atlantic service and will contain every possible convenience for the comfort of passengers. They will be of the "one class" type, with passenger accommodation for 820 second, and 1,200 third class. These new vessels have been named the "Missanbi" and the "Metagama." Their length will be of 520 feet, greatest breadth 64 feet, while the breadth of the passenger deck will be 61 feet. They will each have a dead weight capacity of 7,950 tons, with an approximate cargo capacity for 4,000 tons. The famous cruiser stern, which is the feature of the new Empress recently placed on the Pacific coast, is being introduced and the new ships will also have six complete steel decks. In order to insure safety the hulls are to be subdivided by water-tight doors and bulkheads, so as to be capable of floating when three compartments are open. These water-tight bulkheads and doors will be automatically controlled from the bridge. The speed of each vessel will be 15 knots, with a draught of 27.5. As for the interior of the vessels, each second-class state room will be fitted with a dressing and chest of drawers, folding lavatory with mirror, and other conveniences. The public rooms will be dining saloon, smoking room, lounge and drawing room. The refrigerating plant will be capable of making 300 pounds of ice per eight hours. The vessels will be heated and ventilated by a thermometer system, changing the cold air supply each hour. There will also be a printing plant on board each vessel.

The Stone of Infamy

In many Italian cities there formerly existed what was called "pietra d'infamia," or a stone of infamy for the punishment of bankrupts. In Venice one stands near the church of St. Mark, and in Visagna and Florence they are near the old markets. In a day in carnival week the old time custom was to have all tradesmen who had become bankrupt in the preceding twelve months led to the stone, and one by one each stood on the centre to hear the reading of a report of his business failure and to receive the reproaches heaped on him by his creditors. At the end of a certain time each bankrupt was publicly undressed, and three officers took hold of his shoulders and three others of his hands, and, raising him as high as they could, bumped him on the stone deliberately twelve times "in honor of the twelve apostles." The creditors crowing like cocks while the bumping proceeded.

The Experimental Farms Report

The information contained in the report of the experimental farms of the Dominion department of agriculture is so varied and complete as to render these carry volumes almost worthy the name of "Encyclopedia of Canadian Agriculture." The experimental farms system embraces the Central farm and twenty branch farms and stations, each manned by a staff of specialists. At these widespread, well-equipped institutions scientific study every phase of agriculture, from the study and suppression of plant diseases to the successful raising of all manner of orchard, garden and field crops and classes of domestic animals are taken the experimentation, seven outlying sub-stations carry on and report upon work of an agricultural nature.

The report for the year ending March 31, 1913, makes a volume of nearly 300 pages, crammed with facts and figures, and is compiled by a staff of specialists. "I call him father," was the reply.

"Well, what does your mother call him?"

The response was eloquent of the manners of the neighborhood: "She doesn't call him anything—she likes him."—Liverpool Post.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Indigestion and the attendant discomforts of mind and body are certain to follow continued use of improper food.

Those who are still young and robust are likely to overlook the fact that, as dropping water will wear a stone away at last, so will the use of heavy, greasy rich food, finally cause loss of appetite and indigestion.

Fortunately many are thoughtful enough to study themselves and note the principle of cause and effect in their daily food. A young woman writes her experience thus:

"Sometime ago I had a lot of trouble from indigestion, caused by too rich food. I got so I was unable to digest scarcely anything, and medicines seemed useless.

"A friend advised me to try Grape-Nuts food, praising it highly and as a last resort, I tried it. I was fearful to say that Grape-Nuts not only relieved me of my trouble, but built me up and strengthened my digestive organs so that I can now eat anything I desire. But I stick to Grape-Nuts."

WAKEFUL BABIES

If your baby does not sleep, if he is cross, cries a great deal and will not be satisfied, put the blame where it belongs. Baby's Own Tablets. They promote sleep—not the drugged unnatural kind obtained through the use of "soothing" mixtures, but that refreshing natural sleep of the healthy child. The Tablets banish all stomach and bowel complaints—the direct cause of restlessness and sleeplessness. Concerning them Mrs. E. Medan, Grand Bois, Que., says: "When I began using Baby's Own Tablets he was so troubled with constipation he would not sleep day or night. But all the trouble has ceased and he is a strong healthy child." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Our contributor's small friend, little Willie, met the lodger as he observed that fish was the big dish at his home on Friday. And he had observed that the fish was bought at neighboring households.

Recently, little Rollo was sent out to visit his friends in the country. And after a day or two he missed something.

"Grandma," said he, "ain't it ever Friday in the country?"

"Why, yes, dear," she laughed. "Of course it is. Today is Friday, dear."

"Well," said Rollo, "it don't smell like Friday."

A movement has sprung up among the lumberjacks on the coast and inland to the call to quit the woods, to become permanent settlers instead of roving laborers without homes. The movement is spreading the movement by all means.

Silhouette and Painting

The art of painting begins inevitably with drawing—with expression by means of the line in the reserve line. This every teacher and academy realizes and has to realize. More, every great school of painting has evolved from it. But this use of the point of drawing soon reaches its limitations, and the brush demands mass, or perhaps it is more correct to say the pencil must become a brush. The floating of masses on to canvas or paper, with its edges holding the form, is the line in silhouette. Silhouette, in other words, is the basis of all mass impressions. Without a sense of silhouette we can utter no large and sublime moods. Yet, strangely enough, the small part given to silhouette in the teaching of the art of painting in academies—indeed, in fact, the whole lack of it—has always struck me as extraordinary.—Haldane Macfall in T. P.'s Weekly.

For four consecutive nights the hotel proprietor watched his fair, timid guest fill her pitcher at the water tap.

"Madam," he said, on the fifth night, "if you would ring, this would be done for you."

"But where is my bell?" asked the lady.

"The bell is beside your bed," replied the proprietor.

"That the bell!" she exclaimed. "Why the boy told me that was the fire alarm and that I wasn't to touch it on any account."

"Why is there such a hot fight over the appointment of a postmaster in this little town?" asked the stranger. "The office doesn't pay anything much does it?"

"That ain't it, mister," replied the native. "You see most of us are particular as to who reads our post cards."

"Willie, come right into the house. I don't want you to play with that little boy any more."

"All right, mother, I've just won his last marble anyhow."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Funerals in Peru

According to social usage, women in Peru cannot attend funerals, and they do not appear at weddings unless they are very intimate friends. When a funeral procession passes through the streets the coffin is carried upon the shoulders of the pallbearers, who are followed by an empty hearse driven by two, four or six horses, according to the means of the mourners and their rank in society. All the male members of the family and friends of the deceased follow on foot with a line of empty carriages behind them. As long as they are in the presence of the dead it is considered a proper and necessary evidence of respect to walk. After the body has been committed to the grave those who attend the funeral are brought home in the carriages.

Miller's Worm Powders destroy worms without any inconvenience to the child, and so effectually, that they pass from the body unperceived. They are not ejected in their entirety, but as a ground up and pass away through the bowels with the excreta. They thoroughly cleanse the stomach and bowels and leave them in a condition not favorable to worms, and there will be no revival of the pests.

"What can that young fellow find to talk about for three hours every night?"

"Oh, he has plenty to talk about. He has to tell Mabel he loves her, and he's over four or five thousand times."—Kansas City Journal.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

Ancient "Granary of the Empire"

It is difficult to imagine, but true, that as regards wheat, Britain in early days was the Canada of the Roman Empire. The Romans invested money in British land, sent their agents over to look after it, and there were fleets of corn on the northern slopes of the Thames, across a Strand and Holborn, to Islington, the grain of which was transported to the Imperial City. London now occupies those ancient wheat farms.

Kept Them All on Edge

One of the favorite devices of Lord Nelson when ships were cruising in company was to have a signal given craft that Lieut. Smith or Staff Engineer Brown or Captain of Marines Jones was to take charge, on the assumption that all his superior officers on board had been put out of action. "Kept the ship of Trafalgar Refought," says the result was very good, for every officer made a point of trying to make himself fit to carry out the duty should it ever be assigned to him.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The professor of natural philosophy in Trinity college gave the class a problem to work out during the night and answer the next day. The question was this: "If a hole were bored through the centre of the earth from side to side and a ball dropped into it, would it come to a state of rest?"

Next morning a student was called up on this philosophical problem.

"What answer do you give to this question?" asked the professor.

"Why, really," said he, "I have not thought of the main question, but of a preliminary one. How are you going to get that hole through?"

The Stronghold of Cleanliness

Don't Overwork the Heart

"To keep your temper is rather a good thing," says Dr. Strickland Goodall of London. "Every time the heart contracts its force would raise a weight of two pounds to the height of one foot, and it does this from 70 to 140 times every minute.

"Running to catch a train increases the heart's work by 328 foot pounds a minute. Ascending a staircase slowly increases the heart's work by 312 foot pounds and ascending quickly by 1324 foot pounds.

"A man who is really angry increases the work of his heart by 72 foot pounds. A rest of half an hour would save in a year 219,000 foot pounds of work on the heart."

Drives Asthma Like Magic.—The

immediate help from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy seems like magic. Nevertheless it is only a natural remedy used in a natural way. The smoke or vapor, reaching the most remote passage of the affected tubes, brushes aside the trouble and opens a way for fresh air to enter. It is sold by dealers throughout the land.

Some birds, like all children, like to play, and Australia and New Guinea produce the lyre bird, which builds regular playhouses. These houses are not a part of their nests, but are built usually in the shape of covered archways of little boughs two or three feet long, eighteen inches high and about as wide. They use these houses simply for their games, as if they were clubhouses. Generally these playhouses are decorated with bright colored shells and feathers.

PRESIDENT WILSON SPEAKS OF THE FLAG

Waving his hand to an American flag hoisted by a squad of bluejackets, President Wilson to a crowd assembled before the State, War and Navy Departments to celebrate Flag Day, that flying over a reunited nation, this banner for the future "was meant to stand for the just use of undisputed national power."

"I sometimes wonder why men take this flag and flaunt it," said the President. "If I am respected I do not have to demand respect. If I am feared I do not have to ask for fear. If my power is known I do not have to proclaim it. I do not understand the temper, neither does this nation understand the temper of men who use this flag boastfully.

"This flag I flutter is meant to stand for the just use of undisputed national rights; and we should lay it to heart that no nation shall ever henceforth doubt our purpose to put it to the highest uses to which a great emblem of justice and government can be put.

"It is henceforth to stand for self possession, for dignity, for the assertion of right of one nation to serve the other nations of the world, an emblem that will not condescend to be used for purposes of aggression and self aggrandizement; that is too great to be debased by selfishness; that has vindicated its right to be honored by all nations of the world and feared by none who do righteousness.

"Is it not a proud thing to stand under such an emblem, would it not be a pitiful thing, ever to make apology and explanation for anything done under the leadership of this flag carried in the van? Is it not a solemn responsibility laid upon us to lay aside bluster and assume that much greater thing, the quietude of genuine power? So it seems to me that it is my privilege and right as the temporary representative of a great nation that does what it pleases with its own affairs to say that we please to do justice and asert the rights of mankind wherever this flag is unfurled."

THINK SCHOOL CHILDREN SHOULD DRESS ALIKE.

Would Remove Social Distinction and Reduce Cost of Living—Also Be More Sanitary.

The Dominion Commission which is investigating the high cost of living in Canada, entertained most favorably a suggestion from the president of the Calgary Consumers' League that all school children should be uniformed, the boys in khaki and girls in denim suits of the same style, color and material. This, the advocates of the scheme believe, will do away with social distinctions, reduce the cost of clothing and result in better health and sanitation of school pupils. Parents are to supply the uniforms.

FARMERS CAN STOP OIL MEN FROM DRILLING.

To protect the farmer from the petiable effec's which threaten to follow the indiscriminate drilling operations throughout the oil area, the United Farmers of Alberta, after consulting the best legal advice obtainable in the city, have addressed a circular to farmers showing them their legal position in the matter of surface rights.

Touching stories are being told of the hardships wrought to farmers on long settled homesteads, and the allegation is being made that oil companies are completely ignoring the regulations, and are throwing derrick timbers on the ground without any arrangement with owner of surface rights.

To safeguard the farmers liable to be affected throughout the province the executive of the U. F. A. has taken prompt steps to enlighten them as to their rights, pointing out that the law allows them to keep off all drillers and their outfits until such time as some satisfactory arrangements as to surface rights are made.

If the farmer and the drillers can not agree, the matter has to go to arbitration, and until decision is given in that, the driller cannot encroach one foot on the land. If he does and refuses to leave or remove his outfits, the farmer can do the removing in both instances, using force is necessary.

WOMAN WAS A SOLDIER.

"Albert" Cashier, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Quincy, Illinois, who had been masquerading as a man for 60 years, and served as a soldier in General Grant's army during the civil war, has just been found to be a woman. Her sex was discovered only while she was under the care of the surgeon.

The woman was born in Ireland 72 years ago, and went to America as a stowaway clad in boy's clothes. When the civil war broke out she enlisted in the 95th Illinois Infantry and participated in some of the bloodiest battles, always behaving with great gallantry.

When the war closed she resumed civil life as a workman until age and the results of exposure during the war made her helpless to support herself. She then entered the Soldiers' home. She has refused to disclose her name or to tell her family history.

THE OIL PRODUCTION THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

Oil is rapidly growing in demand throughout the world, and that is one reason why oil fields appeal so strongly to the speculative individuals. There is always a market for it—and the market is becoming larger. Oil is taking the place of coal in steamship, railway and manufacturing circles. The price of coal has been rather tending upwards, while of late the price of oil declined considerably. Nor would it be surprising if the spread between prices should increase yet more. Coal producers are constantly face to face with the labor problem, whereas, in the case of oil, comparatively little labor is required, and even then it is probably a class of labor from which little trouble need be expected. Then, too, the output of oil is increasing at a rapid rate, and from all accounts it will receive quite an impetus as soon as the Mexican trouble is brought to an end.

The United States is the greatest oil producing country in the world, its output in 1913 being 242,000,000 barrels, an increase of 70,000,000 barrels in five years. Russia comes second with a production of sixty-six and a half million; Mexico third with twenty-six million barrels; Roumania 13,500,000 barrels; Dutch East Indies, 11,000,000 barrels; Galicia, 7,800,000 barrels; India, 7,200,000 barrels; Japan, 1,800,000 barrels follow. We all hope that Alberta will be to the forefront in this list at a very early period. The development campaign now under way ought to soon settle our position in the oil producing world.
